GENERAL NEWS

MINING FIRM PURCHASES MINOC ASSETS

Minoc officials okayed the final decision to transfer mining lands to the Atkins Mining firm this week. Town officials felt that the 1.4 billion gold purchase was good in that it would promote future growth of the town with little negative impact on everyday local functions. Mine owners could not be reached for comment.

FRUSTRATED FEY FRIENDS FORSAKE FOOTWEAR FABRICATOR

Citing irreconcilable differences, brownie workers departed the employ of footwear mogul for greener pastures. Brownie spokesman, Pilwinkle Dabblewonkin had this to say, "When we first signed onto this job, it was largely out of pity for the poor cobbler. You see, at the time, the guy was barely making ends meet. He was in danger of losing his house, his wife was sick, and was way behind on his work, due to extreme exhaustion. He came to us for assistance, and in exchange for some honey cakes and sweet cream, we would work long into the night to fill his work orders. It seemed like a good idea at the time; we brownies are suckers for those damn honeycakes.

Eventually, the cobbler got his life back on track, and was making gold hand over fist due to the demand for unique fey made footwear. We brownies were working around the clock for some honey cakes that turns out can be bought for 5 gold per dozen.
Yeah, we brownies are pretty crappy businessmen. So now, the cobbler's walking around like some bigshot, and hasn't even made the effort to show a gesture of gratitude. It's not about the honeycakes man, it's about the respect!
So, it's back to Ilshenar for us." There is no telling how this news will impact footwear purveyors, as authorities fear a repeat recurrence of the Sosarian sandal slayings where footwear fanatics hunted down innocent mages for their uniquely hued shoes.

TAVERN PATRON
MUGGED BY WISPS,
DEPANTSSED!

It was not to be the usual walk home from the tavern, as Serpent Cross barfly, Milo McTavish
departed the Yew

establishment in his usual enebriated state. Following about five minutes of travel, he was accosted by two glowing orbs that proceeded to dart about him in what he described as "in a playful manner." Events then took an awful turn as the two wisps suddenly began to roughly shove him back and forth before pushing him to the ground. When McTavish finally did get back on his feet, he discovered his assailants long gone, and himself minus his money pouch and a new pair of pants. Wisp expert, Cear Dalben remains skeptical of the account and stated, "Wisps have never demonstrated this sort of roguish behavior or facination with trousers in the past, so why should they start now? It's not as though they could wear them." She then paused before concluding, "Or could they?....."

Did you know?: The Jungle parrot, despite its diminutive size, has a crushing beak powerful enough to break the spine of its prey, the giant serpent. It then uses its strapping wings to lift the carcass up to its nest where it will feed its voraciously hungry chicks.

Quote of the Day: Give a murderer a fish and you feed him for a day.
Teach him to kill fishermen, and you'll feed him for a lifetime."
